

A Letter to Educators & the IEP Team at School

To Whom it May Concern:

has a history of wandering, meaning they may leave a safe area	or wander away from a responsible caregiver may wander for a variety of reasons which are often goal-directed (i.e. communicate or obtain a want/need, seek or avoid sensory input). It is reported that at least 49% of people with Autism will wander at least once in their lifetime. Wandering poses a serious risk of injury or death - especially related to traffic and water-related incidents. Because of these risks, safety precautions and preventative supports are important to be addressed by	_'s IEP and school team.

Leaving ______ unattended puts them at an increased risk of wandering and potentially dangerous circumstances. To keep ______ safe while under your instructional care, there must be appropriate supports in place.

Some safety considerations for team discussion and planning:

1. Historical wandering scenarios:

2. Known patterns of wandering:

a. When? ______ b. Where? ______ c. Why, if known? ______

3. Precipitating factors (things that may happen immediately before wandering, potentially triggering wandering or signaling that wandering may occur soon):

A Letter to Educators & the IEP Team at School

4. What has been known to increase likelihood of wandering?

- 5. What has been effective in decreasing likelihood of wandering?
- 6. What is the school's protocol for wandering events?
 - a. When wandering occurs from a school environment

b. When wandering occurs during an off-site event (ex: field trip)

- 7. What level of adult supervision is required to keep ______ safe?
- 8. What additional layers of protection are needed? (ex: visuals, direct instruction, locked doors, alarms, physical barriers)

Signed,

Parent/Guardian